DEDICATION

We, the class of June, 1938, respectfully dedicate this Senior Optimist to "Dean" Parsons, who has been our friend and adviser.

MADE IN GERMANY

Charlotte S. Leon

Crash! A small glass crashed resoundingly against the well-polished panel of the large dimly-lit office.

"Bah! Made in Germany!" growled the tall gray-bearded old man seated at the large desk. Dr. Paul R. Froelich muttered to himself, then reached for another glass. Not finding any, he tilted the bottle to his lips and drank a long draught. It had been many years since he had taken a drink. Way back when he had started his career in the university. He hadn't met his Anna yet. Poor dear Anna; she had been so lovely. Her dark hair, lovely eyes—she had been so beautiful.

"Verdamnt Germans!" The old man's eyes gleamed with hate as he thought of how his lovely Anna had died under the persecution of the Germans, his own people. Yes, they had killed his Anna but he had gotten away with the boy. Ach! Carl! Such a good boy! Why, he'll be twelve next month. I must get him something nice. Already he wants to become a famous doctor like his father. He always bothers Gretchen to let him play doctor. She is such a good woman, Gretchen. It is lucky I found her to take care of my Carl. She is devoted to the boy. If only she wouldn't talk so much German. She promises not to, but every time she becomes excited she forgets. Ach! It is bad for the boy! I want him to forget German!

The old doctor paused in his musings to take another swig from the bottle when something on the label caught his eye.

"Made in Germany! Bah, I hate everything with those words!" The enraged surgeon paused, the bottle half-way to his lips. With a sweep of his arm, he sent the partly-filled bottle crashing against the far wall of the room, the liquor making a large stain on the polished wood-work.

Just as the old doctor sank into his chair, a timid knock was heard on the door.

"Come" growled Froelich and glared at the young, pale-faced interne who cautiously invaded the sanctity of his private office. "What is it you wish?"

"Excuse me for bothering you, sir, but there is an emergency case that just came in. A young boy, sir, with a ruptured appendix. There is an old lady with him who seems to be trying to tell us something but we can't understand her. She is excited and can talk only in German."

"German! Bah! Dogs! Tell Dr. Bruder to handle this case."

"Dr. Bruder! Why he has never handled an operation in his life! Why, this is murder!" The young interne's eyes flashed.

"Silence!" shouted the old surgeon, the liquor mounting to his brain. His eyes flashed with his long hatred for his old fatherland. "I am in charge here! Tell Dr. Bruder to prepare for the operation. Go!"

The youth in white turned on his heel and softly closed the door behind him.

"Bah! Germany!" muttered the gray-thatched physician as he settled back in his chair. His head nodded forward fighting to shake off the effect of the alcohol, but in vain. Slowly the old head drooped, and the office was silent, save for the snores of the tired old man.

Some hours later, Dr. Froelich was awakened from his sleep by a loud knocking on his office door.

"Beg your pardon, Dr. Froelich," began the pale young interne who entered.

"Yes?" interrupted the still sleep-sodden surgeon.

"These death certificates. They await your signature." The young man laid the papers respectfully on the desk.

"Yes, yes! I shall sign them. Return for them later! That is all."

Slowly he shook his head to remove the cobwebs of sleep from his brain. Adjusting his glasses, he dipped his pen in the large onyx ink well and turned to the small squares of glossy paper, carriers of evil, certificates of death!

"William Adams, 64, hmmm" muttered the doctor, scribbling his name at the bottom." Sadie Briggs, 55, Albert Devine, 34, Carl . . . Gott in himmel!" The old doctor stared at the small white square, unable to believe his eyes. Then, suddenly, he clutched his throat, groaned hoarsely and toppled in a limp heap upon the polished floor. Clutched in his hand was the paper with the words: "Died after operation for appendix. Carl Froelich, 12, Dr. Bruder."

As the crumpled paper fell from the doctor's lifeless hand, an inscription was noticeable on the bottom. In small print, it said, "Made In Germany."

WHY SO RESTLESS?

Doris Steinfeld

Like the condemned man waiting in his cell; like the impatient invalid recovering from some illness, man seeks to break through the massive chains of time. Restless youth stands on tiptoe before the heavy wall of time, straining its neck in the attempt to look over into the eternal abyss.

Blessed infancy only is content to lie gurgling on its back, reveling in the glorious present and willing to let the closely-knitted future unravel itself in due time.

The sagacious scientist in his laboratory spends days and weeks and months pondering over new methods of prolonging the duration of human lives. Large fortunes are spent each year to help retain the vigor and elasticity of youth. Yet, every day in every way, humanity unconsciously decreases its span of life.

Life, like the tide, ebbs away as quickly as it comes. Human beings forever discontented with the fortunes of today, ceaselessly cry for the things that tomorrow may bring. Always they call for more and more tomorrows, not stopping to realize that the seemingly abundant supply will some day cease to be.

Discontent, like some poisonous venom, seems always able to worm its way into the core of human hearts. Slowly, it propagates itself throughout the system, bringing great unhappiness to its petulant victims, who flounder about like drowning persons in the sea of their ever-increasing desires.

To want is painful, but to want without hope of ever attaining, is torturous.

Restlessness, sometimes, like a pregnant seed in fertile land, brings forth a rich harvest. Often it may lead to the making of some powerful, great, or beautiful creation. It may serve to inoculate man with the stamina needed to attain his goal. Then again it may work against him like some bad drink, destroying whatever possibilities there may have been for him to fulfill his life's ambition.

AMONG OUR SOUVENIRS

F. M.

Father Time has tolled the huge bell in the tower of Eternity. Four times its ominous gong reaches the reluctant ears of us graduates, informing us that four happy, eventful years have passed. Four years spent among the familiar faces of friends and under the patient, diligent instruction of congenial teachers. These sweet memories are indelibly etched upon our brain, stored up in our mental warehouses to be reviewed tenderly, one by one, many years hence, when we feel the vital need of them.

Seemingly, as if on wings, the time has passed since we first entered South Side's welcoming portals. As we gaze into the past we see ourselves as we were then: eager, bursting with youthful enthusiasm, and possessing a hunger for knowledge that only "book l'arnin'" could appease. Zealously we set to work, and soon we discover a year has passed.

In the sophomore year a bit of the glitter has worn off and gone is that robust enthusiasm we first possessed. But in its stead we find a more mature "yen" for the better things in life. Reborn in us is the desire that urged us on through the years of our primary school instruction. Eagerly again we set to work and speedily another year rolls by.

It is in the junior year that the lipstick and hair bobs appear in girls and the gruff voice and tobacco odor in boys. The brass is beginning to show through on the face of our shining ideal as we encounter that menace to a student's well-being, namely, the exam! However, the thought of future graduation spurs our souls with encouragement and somewhere we gather up the maimed strings of our shattered illusion and struggle on.

The senior year has come at last! What a joyous rejuvenation of that illusion which we had until it was brutally killed by those exams! Merrily we pitch in and manage to wade through the swirling financial waters which threaten to engulf us. But Lady Luck wearily guides us and—here we are! Yes, fellow-graduates, this brief description is just a summary of the emotions, worries and thoughts we all have had, at some time during our four happy years at South Side. And, as our thoughts unconsciously race ahead, striving to peek into the key-hole of the future, we murmur contently "It takes life to love life."

THANKS FOR THE MEMORIES

F. S.

It was May, and the time was almost eight-thirty. The little house on Maple Avenue was quiet, and almost empty, except for Mary, the Donovans' oldest girl, who walked idly around the front room. She was nervous and seemed greatly agitated.

After having many times treaded the thickly-carpeted room, she wearily dropped down on the piano bench. Unconsciously her hands sought the keys. Without feeling, she played a melody. The tune dimly penetrated her muddled brain. She remembered the first time she had heard that song . . . He had been there at the dance, and Dot had brought him over and introduced him to her. The orchestra began to play that song. He asked her to dance. How she had tingled all over when he had told her she was different.

From the party next door came the sound of merry laughter and music. They were playing "Thanks For the Memories," the song he had sung so often. Smiling, she remembered how time after time he had stumbled over the same line that the party was now shouting out. He never could get that middle verse.

Then she remembered the fun at football games—the triumphal way in which she had cheered and had sung "Bingo" time after time, in honor of his touchdowns. Funny how no one could resist him, not even the other teams!

She left the living room and slowly walked upstairs. As she passed the little alcove, she noticed how beautiful and clear the night was. Almost as beautiful as on that night, when, coming home on the hay ride, with a silver moon beaming down, and the others singing the old and sentimental songs, they had stolen their first kiss . . .

Suddenly she turned and ran to her room. Sobbing, she threw herself on the bed and cried for over ten minutes. As she gradually gained control of her feelings, music from somewhere outside drifted in through her bedroom window. Her sobbing burst out afresh. It had been the last song they had heard together.

They had been riding along together, the radio softly playing. But the music had not matched their tempers. For some reason, she had forgotten what it was, they had argued until he had angrily reached over and switched off the radio and driven straight home.

Tomorrow night was to have been their night of nights. How they had talked and planned for weeks on attending THEIR Prom. She had bought her gown—how well it had fitted her! But now she doubted if she would ever wear it.

From somewhere down the street came the sound of someone whistling. In time with the whistling she sang the words:

*Thanks for the memories,—
Of candlelight and wine,
Castles on the Rhine,
Of cozy-chair*

*And parties where
We sang Sweet Adeline,
How lovely it was.
Many's the time that—*

Suddenly she stopped. The whistling had stopped, too. This was where he had always gotten mixed up. Could it be he? He knew no one on Maple Avenue, but her.

WAITRESS

Bert Pierce

She could tell you
That if all the walking she had done
Were straightened out
She'd be just about in heaven
And better off, maybe.
What the guys who try to date her don't know
Is, that when they tip her
They're being nice to a sweet old
Lady whom she calls "Mother."

CINQUAINS

Florence Hollander

Greenness,
Warmth and coolness,
Pungent paint aromas,
Noise of skating, shouting, running—
Springtime.

Night time,
Waves of blackness,
Wrap in your great robe,
Waft me on your sea of stillness—
Drifting.

Summer,
Slipping by us,
Would that we could hold you,
Passing with the trees' bright foliage—
Sadly.

PETERLE

Herta Eichtersheimer

You usually don't write about your own boy-friends. But I am going to do so for a change.

My boy-friend's name was Peter. Peter the Great. He certainly was a handsome fellow. And smart and funny. What else do you want?

You'll be astonished to learn that I had to chew my little friend's food, before he could eat it. But that was only when we first met. He was too helpless then to do his own work, for he was only three weeks old.

He had as white a neck as a swan, with four blue points around it like a chain. His coat was striped blue-white like a zebra. Only with different colors of course. His long tail was blue.

As you may have guessed already, Peter the Great was a parrakeet, a little parrot.

Well, as he grew up, Peterle became a very attentive student. Sitting on my nose, he bent his little body as far over as he could, always afraid he would lose a word that came from out of my mouth. And so he learned the most important part of a language (the most expressive anyway): Slang. I bet you, there wasn't a word in the whole slang, he couldn't use! (It was good that you had to get used to his voice, before you could understand him; otherwise, visitors would have wondered what kind of a house they had entered. By the way, my dear cousin Hildegard always pretended not to understand him. (I'll never forgive her that!))

My mother didn't like very much the idea of birds walking around on dinner-tables. But the majority (Peter the Great and I), won. There really was no reason whatsoever to exclude him from a decent table. You can be sure that he had a sense of etiquette. He never walked into the middle of plates. He always remained very decently on the edges and picked with his beak whatever he desired to have for dinner.

When he saw a mirror, he started to laugh over his whole face. And then he told stories to that other Peterle in there, stories without ending. His inquisitive mind forced him several times to get hold of that fellow by looking behind the mirror. But unfortunately that lovely phantom disappeared then. So Peter the Great had only one choice to shake his aged head and forget about his research work. (I tried that mirror-business with different dogs, but all of them simply turned around and looked at me as if they wanted to accuse me of doubting their intelligence.)

Peter also loved to listen to music and vacuum-cleaners. He accompanied them with his chattering and all the songs he could whistle. How many times a day did I run to the window, anxious to see who was whistling for me, and had to discover that there was Peter, playing a joke on me.

And how many note-books did that little devil spoil for me! Not that he was eating the paper! No!! Peter the Great had too much princely blood in his veins for that! But he simply was delighted if other people were angry. And he liked to tear paper.

But one morning, Peterle didn't look happy at all. He tried hard to swallow something that seemed to be in his throat. That poor chap asked me for help with his tired eyes. What else could I do but give him some water to drink? It seemed to help him for the moment. But he must have suffered too long already for his strength.

I held his little dead body in my hand. His soul was somewhere else. Maybe nowhere, maybe flying around in the universe . . . free. Who knows?

IDEAS

Louis Fillinger

Ideas are like pegs which we have to trim and fit.
They must be shaped bit by bit
Till at last they are perfect.

A TOAST HERE'S TO OLD SOUTH SIDE

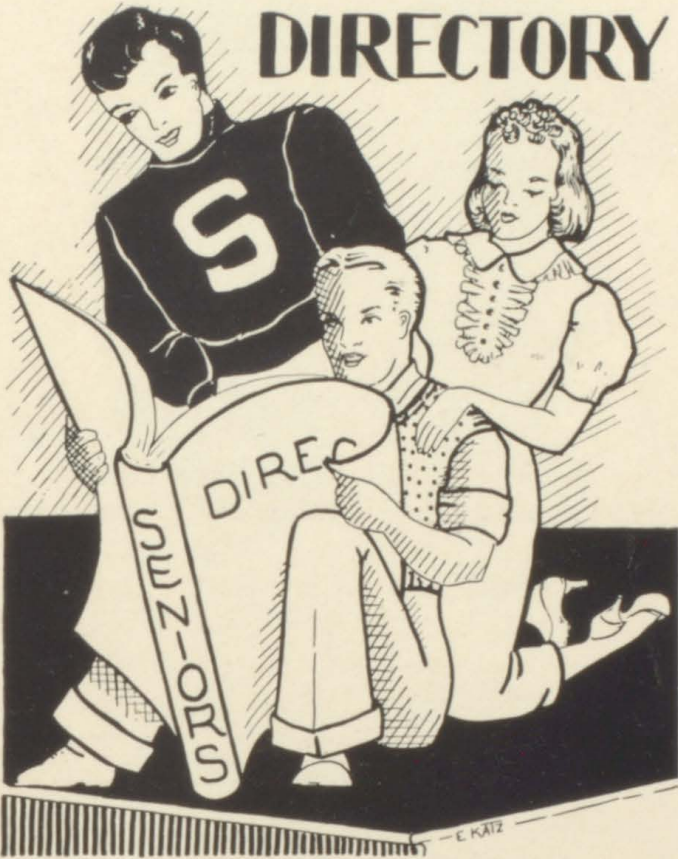

Francis Smith

Here's to our school, may she always be best;
Honored, respected above all the rest!
Here's to the sun, her symbol of power.
Its bright rays beaming on her lofty tower.
Here's to her colors, the Black and the Gold.
Here's to her coaches—the teams that they mold!
Here's to her teachers, the pick of the best,
Cavvy, Miss White, the "Dean" and the rest.
Here's to her boys, their strength and their power,
Lofty in mien; in stature they tower.
Here's to her girls, with hair brown or gold,
Poured as if from one beautiful mold.
Here's to her foes, may they topple and fall!
Here's to Old South Side—the Queen of them all!

NIGHT

Ethel Katz

Above
Peaceful starlight,
Cool breezes caress white stars
And blow the dying fire into a ruby.

EVOLUTION OF A FRESHMAN

Murray Cohen

Many of you will remember, I know,
'Way back about four years ago,
When you were so happy and gay,
For 'twas your first high school day,

You walked into this place
So majestic, and grand,
A smile on your face,
Your hat in your hand.

Led into a whirl,
A merry, mad swirl,
Of filling out papers
And cards galore.

Then the months rolled by,
You increased in size;
No freshman now,
But a sophomore wise.

You took new subjects,
You learned new things,
You had the satisfaction,
That good cards bring.

Next, the years roll by
You're a senior now, to be specific,
So full of knowledge,
You think you're terrific.

You start to think of graduation
"Should I go to work,
Or on to higher education?"
Is running through your mind.

Then the Day came
You were glad to say good-bye,
But now that it was time,
There was moisture in your eye.

You were, oh, so proud,
And felt so very great.
But on page eight, or twenty-eight,
You were just one more graduate.

SPORTS

For the last twenty-five years we have had athletic teams and students in South Side, and after four years of faithful work the students of S. S. on one bright night step up to the front of the platform to receive their diplomas. After this ceremony has been finished our speaker of the evening then tells the audience that this was the best, the greatest, and the——, class to ever graduate from South Side.

And so it is the same with our athletic teams, the writers of the athletic review sit down together and start to weep. They shout to the world in general, while weeping on each others' shoulders, that these were the greatest athletes ever to be graduated from South Side and they do not see how S. S. can produce others like them. Added to that they can't see how S. S. teams will survive.

But for once this reviewing staff will not put on a crying act. We will present our athletes to you, and silently steal away. Of course we may, here and there, revert to the old style of crying but we are only human, so here goes.

The leading performer for the Black and Gold during his four years at South Side is Mike Purzycki, who played leading roles on the football team, basketball team, and the baseball team. He has to his credit four letters in football, four letters in basketball and two letters in baseball.

The baseball team will lose the leading catcher on the schoolboy diamond. This player is no other than Wilbur Mangold who made all-City and all-State baseball team. He is also known for the way he handles a basketball. He played on the basketball team in 1936-37-38, and had three block S's in that sport.

Edward Durna, a small lad with mighty power; he made the all-City baseball team in 1936-37. He has to his credit two major letters, both in baseball. He has also played the leading role on the basketball team in his senior year.

Hy Freedman, a sensation on the basketball court played his best games in his Senior year. He proved to be one of the highest scorers in the state Group 4 High School league.

The swimming team will lose Archie Spielberg whose natatorial feats won for him his block S and several medals. He helped to capture the City Championship in 1937. Charles Kruvant, the manager of the 1937-38 team, will be one of the graduates; he also received his block S.

The fencing team will miss Jack McDonough who was the manager of the team in 1937-1938. He did a marvelous job. The team will also miss Charles Wexner, who rose from a fencer to manager to assistant coach. He has four script S's.

The football team will miss Marvin Geller, who proved to be a good all-around player. He played all positions well and deserves as much credit as Mike Purzycki and Wilbur Mangold. Marvin Geller has two block S's.

The track team is unfortunate in losing Walter Sculthorpe whose brilliant sprinting helped keep the Sunbeams in the winning column. He has to his credit one scrip S.

By this time I'm practically drowned in tears. Here's hoping someone will come to fill the shoes of our graduating class.

So-So-Sout, Ou-Ou-Outh

S O U T H S I D E SOUTH SIDE! SOUTH SIDE! SOUTH SIDE!

Once again graduation swoops down upon us and takes with it some of the best girl athletes that South Side has known for many years. Although the girls do not receive a large block "S" as a reward for their activity, they are as enthusiastic about their sports as are those boys who make the first team; and while the loss of our famous boy athletes will be most felt by the powers that be at South Side, the advisers of hockey, swimming, and archery, Miss Walters and Miss Pearce, will miss the several girls who have participated in athletics during the past four years.

When our class came to South Side four years ago, basketball held a high interest for the girls, and Elsie Fisher, Lena Stein, and Ruth Civins were among the first to go out for the team and make good.

During our second year, more of our girls took an interest in school activities and went out for the field hockey team. If you happened to be crossing the playing field in Weequahic Park on a brisk fall day, and saw a horde of cheering girls bandishing curved sticks and bearing down on a white wooden ball, then you might look more closely and find Marian Kubichek, who is tops in our list of stellar performers, Dorothy Itzel, Mary Dempsey, Shirley Leech, Dorothea Drazin, Adele Sandler, Dorothy Koch, Frances Mayo, Beatrice Morris, Millie Giles, Helen Litwin, Dorothy Chapman, Anna Abramowitz, and Helen Herr among them.

In our third year, with the coming of Miss Walters, swimming was inaugurated and our girls had a chance to become proficient in still another sport. Among our fair mermaids were Ann Korfin, Dotty Koch, "Boots" Dempsey, "Shy" Leech, Dorothy Itzel, and "Mim" Kubichek.

With each Spring came archery, a sport which required a great deal of skill. We had lots of fun at archery practice, and there are many of us who will never forget the pleasant times we had together.

And so, during this, our fourth and last year in high school, we have been participating in these sports with an ever increasing zeal because we realize that soon our brief basking in the spotlight will be over, and we will no longer be able to take part in the activities that made our stay at South Side pleasant and unforgettable.

THE ADVENTURES OF PUN MY WORD

By Rose Plotkin and Pearl Padwe

On Mayo 1938, I, Beron Pun My Word, a Hollander, landed on Ellis Island. I was now in the land of the Freedman. My sister came Widerman to take me home, but the inspector Senzer away.

The next day my cousin, a Fisherman, came for me. The inspector checked my name off the Pad. We then left for Greenfield. For dinner he took me to Plotkin's restaurant, where I, being quite Green, ordered some freshly Koche(d) Fisch, Hammond eggs, Katzup, and a Stein of beer. For dessert I had an ice cream Cohen with dates and razin(s). After that I felt sick and yelled, "I Rue the day that I landed." Everything grew Schwartz (black) and I fainted.

When I woke up I was on a hospital cot. I rang for the nurse and she came in wearing Pearls around Herr neck. She said, "You're all right. Levy alone for a while, I'm busy." I, being a Weiss man didn't Mine, but when she leaned against the window I said, "Watch out, don't Leon that window, you'll fall out and hurt yourself." She looked into my Eisen said "My hero." And that's how I got married.

PROPERTIES OF SULFURIC ACID

Burton Rockliff

I took some H_2SO_4
To sprinkle on my hair,
But when I went to comb it back,
There wasn't any there.

I put some drops upon my shoes
And there was no sensation,
But now you'll notice that my boots,
Have perfect ventilation.

To find out more about the stuff
I poured some on the floor.
That's why downstairs no doubt you will
A ceiling find no more.

SUNNY SNAPS

Frieder: How can I make money last?

Rubin: How can I make it first?

Philosophy: The sea, we have concluded, is so angry because it has been crossed so much.

Photographer: Do you want a large or small picture?

G. Gruber: A small one.

Photographer: Then close your mouth.

Bender: What's a cure for seasickness?

Halper: (thinking) . . . Give up.

Mr. Kirk: What steps ought to be taken to get to classes on time?

H. Isbet: I'd suggest longer ones.

L. Eisen: Tomorrow is my birthday. May I take a day off?

Dean Parsons: Surely, most women take two or three years off.

Mr. Howe: Who discovered America?

Sofman: Why, Ohio did.

Mr. Howe: You're wrong. It was Columbus.

Sofman: Yes I know, but I didn't think you wanted his first name also.

Stein: Now here is a room without a flaw.

Rubin: My gosh, what do you walk on?

Leeson: Do you use Crisco?

Stavitsky: No, I don't.

Leeson: Why not?

Stavitsky: Because it's shortening.

She: All the world's a stage . . .

Mr. Parsons: No wonder the girls use so much makeup.

Applebaum: Have you organic trouble?

Levinson: Nope! I'm not a bit musical.

Mr. Joyce: What are the seven ages of woman?

Pilchman: The infant; the little girl; the miss; the young woman; the young woman; and the young woman.

CANDID SHOTS

Manager: Run up the curtain.

Gralnick: What d'ya think I am, a monkey?

Wilbur Mangold was walking down the aisle in room 60, when suddenly he tore his sock on a desk. "Darn it!" he exclaimed. Very wittily Dot Itzel replied, "Take it off and I will!"

Miss Johnston: Who wrote the "Shiek's Demand"?

Mary Henneberry: Mustapha Kiss.

THE SOUTH SIDE BABY PARADE

On with the show! We will proceed to turn back the clock and present the contestants to you—the judges!

First we have Cecile Wallack, camera shy and sweet on her teddy bear . . . The fair damsel who is tripping the light fantastic is none other than Sara Genet, who while following her childhood aptitudes recently danced through the floor of the auditorium stage . . . The next little boy (3) is evidently an enthusiast of solid geometry. Incidentally, it's Tommy McMahon . . . The angelic looking creature (4) beside him is Helen Litwin . . . The picket fence (5) is in back of Norman Pollack . . . The young lady (6) hanging on to her dress with one hand and posies with the other is Dot Reu . . . Fanny Schneiderman's mother was evidently trying to feed her some spinach which accounts for the rebellious twinkle in her eye (7) . . . Oh! Oh! Don't look now but Milton Widerman's stocking (8) is falling down! . . . "Gosh, mom, could I help it if she wanted to go to the International?" whimpers Billy Malamis (9) age 3 . . . That stunning blonde (10) is Eleanor Zweigbaum. It's her third tooth that she's exhibiting! . . . The young woman surrounding the mouth of No. 14 is Helen Herr . . . That privileged horse! To be sat upon by such a gorgeous particle of humanity as Gerty Schnitzer . . . It wanted to be a sailor but it grew into Irv Gralnick—and we can't say we're sorry . . . Behold! The Class Baby! Judy Sanders (14) at the age of three—need we say more? . . . Rose Plotkin was a sweet child and she had beautiful curls (15) but like wine she improved with age . . . The little fellow with the pile of curls and cute grin (16) is Harry Merliss . . . That attractive little bump on the back steps (17) is Frances Mayo . . . "That ribbon! It was the plague of my youth!" sighs Pearl Padwe (18) . . . We'll bet all we've got that you don't know who number 19 is! Ssh—It's Martha Beron! Surprised? . . . Number 20 is Eleanor Wallack in the days of afternoon naps and mudpies . . . And her contemporary—Miriam Ellis, in rompers—is beside her (21). Number 22—Beatrice Lipkin on a tricycle . . . If little girls are made of sugar, spice, and everything nice, Henrietta Agisin (23) certainly got more than her share . . . That's Ray Emmer (24) looking so sweetly at the birdie . . . Try as we may, we can't fuse the chubby, mischievous looking baby Patricia (25) with the glamorous Pat Koffler of today . . . At this point we sent for smelling salts—So help me—that's Mike Purzycki under the ribbons, before he developed those famous muscles (26) . . . That's Amelia Bruss in 27 and very cute she is too . . . Believe it or not, that's Ruthe Warhaftig in 28. The picture was taken directly after a scrap with Fanny Schneiderman over a doll carriage. Ruthe got the carriage which accounts for the pleased expression . . . The baby under the blond curls in 29 is Rubin Hirschorn . . . Next is Mary Henneberry (30) whose hat beats all . . . That's Ethel (Tom) Katz in 31 looking grinny because of four lollypops and a completed Maypole dance . . . The Pony Express rides again (32) with Bernie Gellerman as jockey . . . And we conclude our Baby Parade with Gerty Kubrick (33) at a tender age—a typical "saucy little redhead."

Who got the prizes? They all did—a diploma.

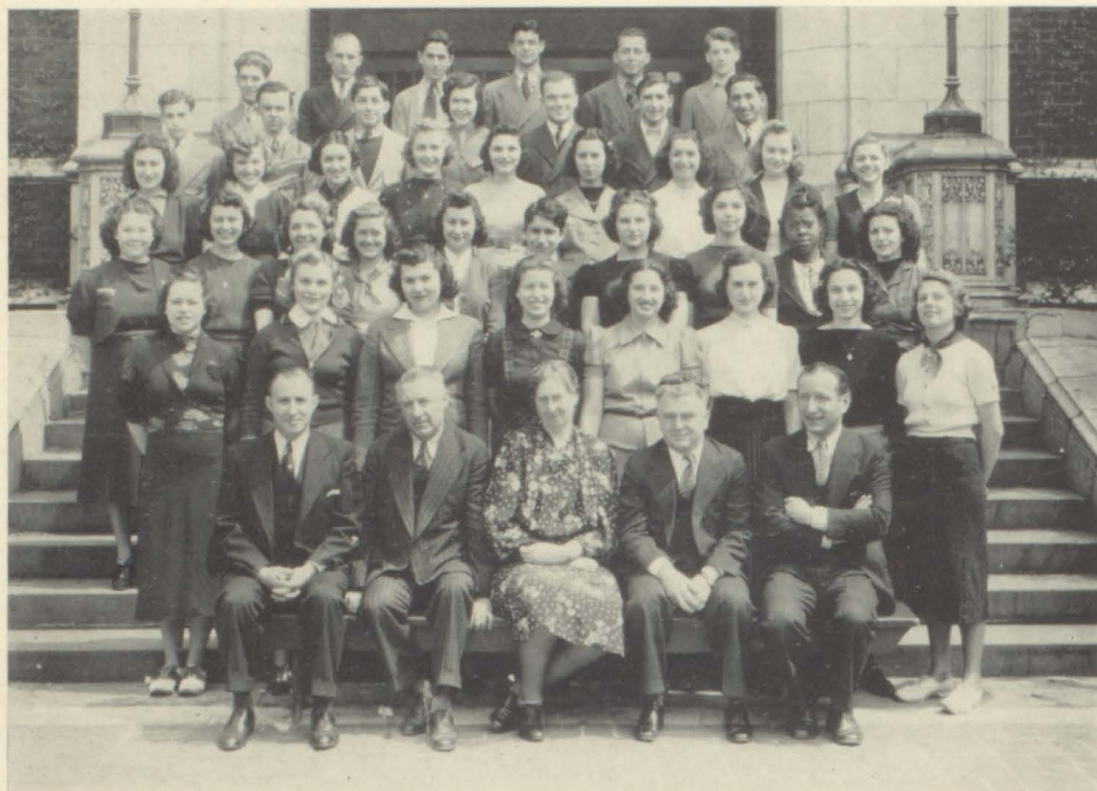

SENIOR DEBATING TEAM

The Senior Debating Team, this term, has engaged in many verbal battles with opposing teams and has emerged victorious.

Mr. Kirk states this concerning the team: "The excellent reputation of South Side in debating did not suffer under their leadership. No further praise is necessary."

The members are: Captain, Harlee Senzer, Cylvia Benenson, Lillian Madanick, Moris Friefeld, Burton Rockliffe, and Gerald Gruber.

HONOR SOCIETY

Character, scholarship, leadership, and service are the four qualifications necessary for membership in the Honor Society. Ever since 1926 the Honor Society has been an organization in South Side, and as early as 1930 it became a chapter of the National Honor Society. Miss White and Mr. Logan have guided the Honor Society this year.

The officers this term are: Harry Merliss, President, and Ruthe Warhaftig, Secretary.

First Row: Helen Herr, Ruth Warhaftig, Secretary, Miss White, Harry Merliss, President, Gertrude Kubrick, Ethel Katz.

Second Row: Cylvia Benenson, Herta Eichtersheimer, Elaine Weiss, Sarah Genet, Louis Mosesof, Dorothy Chapman, Elsie Fisher, Ann Abramowitz, Pearl Padwe.

Third Row: Cecelia Auerback, Rosalind Buchshaum, Jeanne Everett, Anne Marko, Beatrice Lipkin, Phyllis Dornbusch, Hildegard Kurzel, Emily Manko, Helen Litwin.

Fourth Row: Milton Widerman, Olivia Hammond, Miriam Ellis, Dorothea Ren, Muriel Anderson, Harlee Senzer, Annabelle Frawert, Lorraine Eisen, Burian Rockliff.

BUSINESS GIRLS' CLUB

The Business Girls' Club, under the supervision of Miss C. Rivoli, was organized for the purposes of developing personality for business and society, promote general culture, civic improvement and social intercourse. Regular meetings are held every other week on Tuesdays at 2:30.

A newspaper committee has charge of the publicity of the club and sends articles about its meetings and activities to the daily newspapers, and keeps a scrap book. A program committee arranges the programs for each meeting.

The club's activities for the term include: a trip to the N. J. Exhibit at Bamberger's, a visit to the Coca-Cola plant, a Quiz contest, an interesting illustrated lecture on New Jersey's history, a short play presented by a group of members, and a picnic. The most outstanding activity of the year was the Soph Hop sponsored by the club which was held in the gymnasium on February 25. Over 200 attended the dance. The proceeds were turned over to the G. O.

SENIOR DRAMATIC CLUB

The Senior Dramatic Club, under the advisership of Miss Waugh, has given, as its major production, a three act play entitled "Billy."

The club meets twice every month at which one act plays are presented to the club.

The officers of the club are Jack Schwartz, President; Helen Krich, Vice-President; and Lillyan Epstein, Secretary.

SECRETARIES

The Secretaries is a club organized into three different groups according to various speeds of dictation. Miss Doroson is adviser for the 80 word dictation group, Miss Gaertner is in charge of the 140 word dictation, and Mr. Dudas is preparing the 100 word dictation group. Meetings are held twice a week for the 80 and 100 groups, and every morning for the 140 group. The purpose of all three groups is to help the students retain their speed and accuracy in dictation and transcription.

The officers are: Ann Marko, President; Dorothy Koch, Vice-President; Dorothy Chapman, Secretary.

The members are: Anna Bondarvich, Amelia Bruss, Catherine Burns, Albina Callinino, Jeanne Everett, Annabelle Frawert, Eve Geiser, Mildred Giles, Jennie Glazer, Fay Geller, Mary Kaptrokowich, Marian Kubichek, Shirley Leech, Helen Litwin, Maragaret Mirda, Beatrice Morris, Lillian Perlswieg, Leah Rogoff, Evelyn Scholl, Gertrude Schnitzer, Evelyn Stein, Lena Stein, Jeannette Trugman, Belle Walsh, Elaine Weiss, Estelle Wojensky.

SPEED CLUB

The Speed Club meets Tuesdays and Fridays in the morning for the purpose of helping the girls retain their speed in manipulating the various office machines. Prizes will be awarded at the end of the term to the girls holding first place on each machine. The officers are: President, Helen Litwin; Vice-President, Estelle Wojensky; Secretary, Elaine Weiss. The faculty adviser is Mr. Gilbert Kahn.

Second Row: Gertrude Schnitzer, Shirley Leech, Mildred Giles, Beatrice Morris, Judith Sanders, Eleanor Zweigbaum.

Third Row: Jennie Glazar, Dorothy Chapman, Cylvia Benenson, Clara Drucker, Rose Lazarus.

Fourth Row: Leah Rogoff, Dorothy Koch, Lillian Perlsweig, Miriam Shragen, Annabelle Frawert.

GIRLS' GLEE CLUB

The Girls' Glee Club is a group that has managed, and ably so, to keep intact the schools' spirit for choral singing. The membership is limited to the number that can successfully fill the music room; therefore all South Side cannot join in and sing.

The girls are advised by Miss Agnes C. Murphy, and meet twice a week. The officers are: President, Iris Johnson; Vice-President, Ruth Ganek; and Secretary, John Surma.

MIXED CHORUS

The Mixed Chorus is a group of people chosen by Miss Murphy from the Boys' and Girls' Glee Club.

From this group are usually selected the people who participate in the Essex County Chorus and in the City-Wide Chorus.

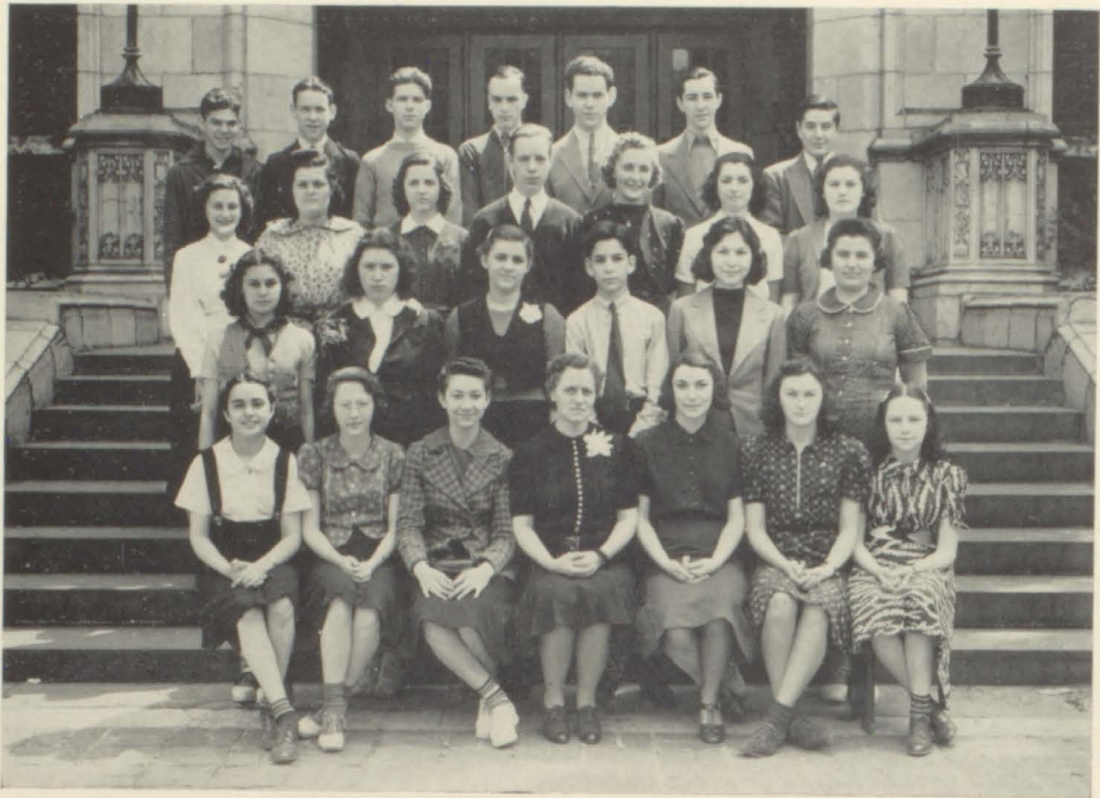

The Chorus consists of the following people:

Sopranos—Irene Banta, Amelia Bruss, Ruth Cohen, Alma Cook, Marjorie Cooper, Edna Dobbins, Mary Frazier, Shirley Gross, Ruth Kassell, Beatrice Kivowitz, Helen Litwin, Muriel Schoenbaum, Esta Schwartz, Joan Surma, Florence Volz.

Altos—Isabelle Abramoff, Rachel Cohn, Shirley Deutsch, Alice Florzcak, Ruth Ganek, Clara Hassett, Dorothy Hastings, Iris Johnson, Adele Lubin, Ruthe Warhaftig.

Tenors—Seymour Bestrichsky, Philip Friedman, Harry Hazelwood, Hyman Kepniss, Sidney Lewitter, Norman Lichtin, Robert Schickel, Richard Saeder, Humphrey Smith, Judge Walker.

Basses—Gerald Bland, Henry Ehrankranz, Sam Fox, Clarence Griffith, John McCullogh, Jack Schwartz, James Shea, Sidney Venetsky, Gilbert Wolfes.

LIBRARY STAFF

The Library Staff is under the guidance of Miss Wolfe, Miss Anderson, and Mr. Lunetta.

The members of the staff are: Alice Abbott, Betty Berlin, Betty Bordeleau, John Bordeleau, Jennie Bosshardt, Lorraine Brandt, Norman Brandt, Virginia Casson, Ruth Lilyan Cohen, Edith Cooper, Lorraine Eisen, Phoebe Fern, Miriam Fisher, Miriam Fox, Clarence Griffith, Helen Haug, Albert Herr, Morton Julius, Albert Kull, Bertha Kull, Jack Kussmaul, Bess Lakos, Lyle Leeson, Maurice Leeson, Beatrice Lipkin, Stanley Loobet, Beverley Martinson, John Mine, Grace Rames, Dorothea Reu, Raymond Scully, Jack Trail, Agnes Woodside.

SCIENCE CLUB

The Science Club affords a great deal of general knowledge to whoever is interested. Mr. Kanengieser and the members have an enjoyable and educational time while they are studying natural subjects.

The officers are: William Feldman, President; Bernard Gellerman, Vice-President; and Herta Eichtersheimer, Secretary.

SENATE

The Senate is a body composed of students only. A senator is elected from each homeroom. The purpose of the Senate is to supervise all functions of the students and to govern them.

The present Senate has been most efficient. It has sponsored many social gatherings, established new clubs and has reorganized the Student Betterment Committee, which is working effectively.

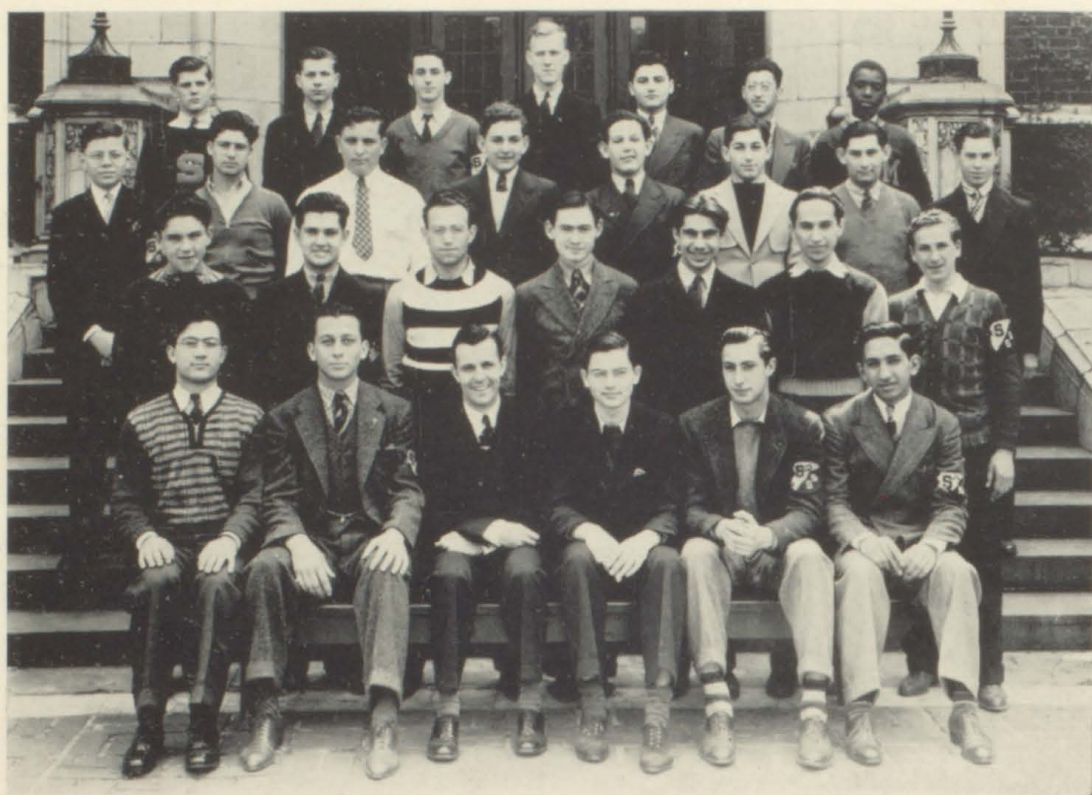

The officers are: Elsie Fisher, President; Morton Kaufman, Vice-President; Mary Dempsey, Secretary. The faculty adviser is Mr. Jayson.

THE JUNIOR SCRIBBLERS' CLUB

The aim and purpose of this club, supervised by Mr. Glicksberg, is "to stimulate and develop creative writing." Every three weeks, the club publishes a paper entitled "The Rising Sun," containing the literary work of the members.

The officers are: Estelle Klein, President; Dorothy Stumpf, Secretary; and Marian Dyer, Editor-in-Chief of "The Rising Sun."

THE SAFETY SQUAD

The Safety Squad is an organization of boys whose purpose is to control the student body in an emergency. The squad is one of the most efficient squads in this part of the state. Many plans for the future have been made to better South Side. The officers are Sherman Borkan, Chief; Irving Speilberg, First Deputy; Morton Galpin, Second Deputy; and Joel Stern, Secretary. Mr. Owen is the adviser.

JUNIOR DRAMATIC CLUB

The first and second year students who are interested in dramatics are divided into two groups, the Junior Thaliens and the Junior Thespians. The total membership is about sixty.

The officers of the Junior Thaliens, under the supervision of Miss Edith Ader, are as follows: President, Dorothy Stumpf; Vice-President, Mortimer Mantell; Secretary, Doris Epstein.

The officers of the Junior Thespians, under the supervision of Mr. Frank DeLisi, are: President, Beatrice Banner; Vice-President, Hannah Appel; Secretary, Adele Czupryk.

This group of young hopefuls is making a niche for itself in the field of entertainment. Just watch their smoke! The members are ambitious and sincere in their efforts.

Be A Higher-up

High School students of today will be the business executives and professional leaders of tomorrow.

That is inevitable.

The place you attain rests largely in your own desires and in your will to try for it.

One good rule is to profit by the experiences of those who have "made the grade."
